This is why it is recommended that the will is recorded in the register. In this way, the testator can be sure that his last wishes will be found and therefore respected following his death.

→ Who can carry out the registration?

The civil law notary, the judge or the lawyer can register wills. In effect, although it is possible to draw up a will oneself, the assistance of a law professional, in particular a civil law notary, is particularly valuable since he is a specialist in the matter. His advice shall thus enable to draw up a will which respects the law and which therefore does not run the risk of being declared null and void.

It is not the content of the will which is registered in the register but the information which enables the will to be found.

→ Who keeps the will?

The civil law notary, the judge or the lawyer are in charge of keeping the wills which the testators have confided to them.

→ Can the testator's family members consult the register while he is still alive?

No, the existence of a will and its content shall remain a secret during the entire life of the testator.
